

Choi Byung Wook teaches Vietnamese and Southeast Asian history at Inha University in Incheon, South Korea. His research interests focus on the nineteenth-century Vietnam, especially on Saigon-Mekong region. His books include Southern Vietnam under the Reign of Minh Mang (2004), A History of Southeast Asia in Traditional Times (in Korean, 2006), A History of Modern Vietnam (in Korean, 2008), and a translation of the Sino-Vietnamese text Chân Lạp Phong Thổ Ký (into Korean, forthcoming). He is also the author of numerous scholarly articles in English and Korean, as well as a number of essays about Southeast Asia for the Korean public.