

Vu Duong Luan is currently a Ph.D Candidate in History at Vietnam National University, Hanoi, where he works as a Research Fellow at the Institute of Vietnamese Studies and Development Sciences, and at Sun Yat-sen University in Guangzhou. At present, he is currently working on his doctoral dissertation entitled “Crossing the Empire’s Edges: The Economy and Society of Sino-Vietnamese Borderlands during Eighteenth and Nineteenth Centuries.” He recently co-authored an article entitled “Chinese Merchants and Mariners in Nineteenth-Century Tongking” in The Tongking Gulf through History (2011).