MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

It is with pleasure that I write in this twenty-fifth anniversary year report of the Centre of Asian Studies. The academic year 1992-93 was celebrated as the commemorative year of the Centre's twenty-fifth anniversary, which happily, coincided with the 80th anniversary celebrations of the founding of The University of Hong Kong. The year was marked by a series of events held specifically for this occasion, such as seminars, public lectures, and a conference, which was the highlight of the series, on 25 Years of Social and Economic Development in Hong Kong. Taking stock of the past twenty-five years of Hong Kong's achievements also put into context the growth of the Centre during this period. It was gratifying to see, at a celebration dinner, the number of eminent scholars who have been associated with the Centre over the years. Many landmark research publications in the field of Asian studies are the results of research undertaken at the Centre.

During the period under review, centre fellows, research officers and scholars associated with our Centre continued to make rapid progress in their on-going research and some of them started interesting new projects. A new research project on telecommunications in Asia-Pacific was set up in the Centre with the financial support of the Hong Kong Telecom Foundation. The Centre also continued its effort in organizing international conferences on a wide range of subjects. Two further international conferences on Chinese music were held during 1992-94, establishing the Centre as a well-recognized focal point for the promotion of research in this area. With substantial funding provided by the Hong Kong government, the Centre hosted the 21st Pacific Trade and Development Conference (PAFTAD) in June 1994. The PAFTAD conference series has been instrumental in the promotion and realization of closer economic cooperation in the Asia-Pacific region. It was the first time that Hong Kong hosted such a conference.

In 1992 to 1994, three eminent Centre scholars were awarded higher doctorates in recognition of their scholarly achievements and service to the community. Dr. James Hayes was awarded a D.Litt. honoris causa by The University of Hong Kong, Ms. Clare Hollingworth was awarded a D.Litt. honoris causa by the University of Leicester, and Prof. Frank King was awarded a D.Litt. by Oxford University. All of us at the Centre would like to extend our heart-felt congratulations to them, all of whom have a long association with the Centre. It is well recognized that our Centre has a team of dedicated, long-service staff. Mr. Shiu Koon-shing received his long-service award in 1991 and Ms. Carolina Chan received hers in 1993.

Looking back with pride at the Centre's track record of excellence in scholarship on Asia, we stride forward with hope and confidence in continuing to instill in a younger generation of scholars the same quest of knowledge through sound research and open exchange of ideas.

INTRODUCTION

The aims and functions of the Centre of Asian Studies are to provide a focal point for The University of Hong Kong in the fields of Contemporary and Traditional Chinese Studies, Hong Kong Studies and East, South and South-east Asian Studies. The Centre is therefore designed to provide research support to the University's and other Hong Kong Scholars, as well as overseas scholars in these fields; supervision for postgraduate students undertaking their studies through research; administrative facilities for research, seminars and conferences relating to these aspects of Asian Studies; a forum for members of the University's teaching staff and postgraduate students to partake in multi-disciplinary and other seminars; publishing facilities for the Journal of Oriental Studies and the results of research in Asian Studies; and the promotion of Asian Studies.

The Centre of Asian Studies is an integral part of The University of Hong Kong. Management of the Centre is the responsibility of a Committee of the University Senate. Basic support is provided from the University's budget, through funding of staff positions, maintenance of the Centre's library, other collections and equipment, and the provision of offices and other services. Additional funds for specific projects and activities are received from various foundations and private sources while "contract operations", directly financed, are also undertaken.

Acknowledgements for major grants for Centre Activities beyond the scope provided by the University budget for the two academic years 1992-94 are made to:

Numerous other smaller grants were made by individuals and organizations, in support of research undertaken and conferences held by the Centre.

The Centre's current research projects are undertaken by its Research Staff, Centre Fellows, Research Fellows, Research Associates, Research Postgraduate Students and Visiting Scholars. The Centre also does some research on a contract basis. Several multinational corporations operating in Hong Kong and Hong Kong industrial concerns have assisted with finance and co-operated on business-oriented projects. Fees from contract research and seminars have provided further financial assistance for research activities.

The Centre is, therefore, a facility for the use of (i) members of the University concerned with Asian Studies, (ii) members of the Hong Kong community undertaking university-level research in relevant topics, and (iii) scholars who are visiting the Centre of Asian Studies. Formal affiliation of those using the Centre is granted by the Committee of Management under different designations approved by the University Senate. In the past, the Centre has also acted as a research base for activities of research groups from overseas. In such cases, the visiting group states its requirements and a formal agreement is drawn up by which the University receives the funds from the sponsoring organization and administers them, employing the necessary support staff (research assistants, translators, clerks) who become members of the Centre staff for the duration of the project. Members of the visiting team are associated with the Centre in the usual ways. The Centre maintains contact with many overseas academic institutions, such as the Institute of Developing Economics (IDE), SOAS at London University, the University and the Polytechnic at Bremen, Germany, the University of California at Davis, and numerous tertiary institutions in China. Regional research activities are being conducted in cooperation with some of these organizations and possibilities for future projects are being considered. In addition, the Centre is a member of the

Hong Kong Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society and maintains contact with a number of relevant professional organizations in Hong Kong, as well as pertinent departments in the other tertiary institutions of Hong Kong.

COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT

The Centre of Asian Studies Committee of Management determines and keeps under review the programmes and activities of the Centre. As a committee of the University's Senate, it advises and reports annually to the Senate on all matters regarding the Centre.

Members of the Committee for the two years, 1992-93 and 1993-94 were Dr. J.P. Burns (Political Science), Dr. G. Evans (Sociology), Dr. C.Y. Sin (Chinese), Dr. E.Y.Y. Sinn (History), Dr. R. Skeldon (Geography and Geology), Professor A.T. Tatlow (Comparative Literature) and Professor P. Wesley-Smith (Law). Professor Tatlow has been Chairman and Ms. Judy Chung, the Secretary, for the whole period under review. The Vice-Chancellor of The University of Hong Kong and the Director of the Centre of Asian Studies are ex-officio members of the Committee.

STAFF

The permanent staff comprised a full-time Director, an Assistant to the Director, three Research Officers, an Assistant Research Officer, and eleven secretarial/clerical staff. In addition to conducting independent research within the Centre's prescribed fields of interest, the Centre's Research Officers work in cooperation with Centre Fellows and the Chairman of the seminar programme which overlaps their area of expertise.

STUDENTS

The Centre of Asian Studies began in 1991, to admit research post-graduate students, who wish to work in the field of Asian studies. During the period under review, the student body increased to 13 students, from the first intake of five:

1. Chen Bo-quan, M.Phil. candidate
Asian Economic Development
2. Maylin Clutterbuck, Ph.D. candidate
Inflation in China during its Modernisation Period: Identification, the Theory and Analytical Framework, Empirical Testing and Outlook.
3. Louis Edward Kelson Ha Seong Kwong, Ph.D. candidate
The Localisation of the Catholic Church in Hong Kong
4. Lee G. Lam, Ph.D. candidate
The Accelerated Development of Greater China as a Thriving, Integrated Economic Entity in the 1990s: The Positive Role and Impact of Hong Kong's Major Corporate Groups
5. Law Kwok-keung, M.Phil. candidate
Kwangtung, Fujien and Hong Kong Economic Relations and their Role in the Economic Development of China after 1984
6. Wendy Lee Chui-yan, M.Phil. candidate
Inflation and Structural Change in Hong Kong
7. Elida Lee Hang-yu, M.Phil. candidate
The Filipino Maids in Hong Kong: A Case Study
8. Joseph Lee Siu-lun, M.Phil. candidate
Research on Subregional Economic Cooperation among Selected East and Southeast Asian Countries
9. Lo Wing-sang, Ph.D. candidate
Studies in Tang Dynasty
10. Raymond Sia Yin-ching, Ph.D. candidate
Housing Market, Development and Policy: with reference to the NICs
11. Bennis So Wai-yip, M.Phil. candidate
Central-Local Relationship in Chinese Politics: The Dilemmas Between Centralization and Decentralization in Communist China
12. Aouda Tse Lai-hing, M.Phil. candidate
From Bureaucrats to Managers: The Human Dimension of Market Transition in Shenzhen, China
13. Xu Chong-ling, Ph.D. candidate
Labour Movement in China

At any given time, five of this number held studentships, an award from the University of Hong Kong which grants financial support for research postgraduate students, and allows the grantees to undertake a limited amount of teaching or other academic work in lieu of teaching. Supervision of the students is provided by the Centre, supervisors being either one of the Centre's academic staff or a Centre Fellow. Degrees will be awarded by a Faculty, either Arts or Social Sciences, depending on the area and discipline of study.

CENTRE FELLOWS, RESEARCH FELLOWS AND RESEARCH ASSOCIATES

Centre Fellows are staff members of the University who have declared their intention to undertake research as "Centre Fellows", and who have been so approved by the Centre's Committee of Management. Some Centre Fellows' projects may be supported by Centre funds; for large projects the Director will advise researchers on how to obtain outside funding.

Research grants of Centre Fellows are administered by the Centre, and Centre Fellows are provided research facilities, and limited office and secretarial services. There were 47 Centre Fellows in the period 1992-94.

Qualified members of the Hong Kong community undertaking scholarly research in the area of Asian Studies may be affiliated to the Centre as Honorary Research Fellows or Research Associates. Where funds are provided, the Centre administers their projects to the same extent as for staff members of the University.

The Centre of Asian Studies welcomes academic visitors who wish, during their professional visits to Hong Kong, to have an operating base and affiliation to a local academic institution. For temporary visits not involving a significant use of Centre resources, formalities are minimal and the scholar is merely designated Visiting Scholar. Those wishing more formal association with the University should apply in advance, stating the details of their project and requirements both for research and for formal association for the consideration of the Committee of Management. Such visitors are designated Research Associates or Honorary Research Fellows. These titles are currently under review.

SEMINAR PROGRAMMES

The Centre has four major seminar programmes. They are essential to the primary function of the Centre as an inter-disciplinary unit bringing together the staff and post-graduate students of the University. They aim to provide the necessary means to encourage group research; to attract an increasing number of scholars to Centre activities; to form a valuable link with the teaching function by enriching the courses offered; and to provide a continuing focus of interest for Centre Fellows. The four programmes are each headed by a Chairman as follows:

Contemporary Chinese Studies (Dr. J.P. Burns, Department of Politics & Public Administration).

Traditional Chinese Studies (Dr. C.Y. Sin, Department of Chinese).

South & South-east Asian Studies (Dr. R.D. Skeldon, Department of Geography & Geology)

Hong Kong Studies (Dr. E.Y.Y. Sinn, Department of History).

The activities of the seminar programmes are conducted through seminars, workshops and lectures by participants and visitors. They are also meant to augment the post-graduate teaching programmes in the University. In the period under review, seminars on Japanese studies were held in conjunction with the Department of Japanese Studies, as part of an on-going co-operation. Seminars of general interest in Asian Studies are also held. In addition, the Centre provides an informal forum for CAS scholars and Centre Fellows to present research in progress, receive feedback on their work, and learn about the work their colleagues are engaged in, through Brown-Bag Lunch-time Colloquia.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

Exchanges on an academic level continued with various institutions in China. Many professors and scholars from the Mainland visited the Centre, to conduct research, to attend conferences and to present seminars and lectures.

The Centre houses a collection of materials of importance in the cultural history of Guangdong. This archival collection consists mainly of folk literature and other popular materials, including "Wooden fish books", "nam yam", ballad, song and puppet theatre, Chinese Medicine, mediumship and Fung-shui books.

In collaboration with the Genealogical Society of Utah, the Centre has also acquired several clan genealogies of Hong Kong and Macau. This collection which is housed in the Fung Ping Shan Library, is a valuable supplement to the Guangdong archives.

The Centre also has collections of slides on the Lingnan School of Painting, Guangdong paintings and Chinese temples in Hong Kong, films of anthropological interest in Hong Kong, and tapes of Nan-yin Cantonese Narrative Songs. These are available on loan for educational purposes. It is hoped that the Centre will be able to expand these audio-visual collections in the forthcoming years.

A small library consisting mainly of materials on Contemporary China is operated by the Centre. This library is open for consultation by University staff and students, and accredited visitors. The collection housed in this library supplements other such collections in Hong Kong, such as that at the Universities Service Centre and the University of Hong Kong Main Library.

The Centre has identified some important areas for research on which work is on-going. "The History of New Music in China from 1885 to 1985," resulted in the establishment of a Chinese Music Research Workshop within the Centre in 1991, with Dr. Liu as Chief Coordinator and Chief Investigator collaborating with Honorary Research Fellows, Ms. Barbara Fei (Vocal Music), Mr. Wu Ganbo (Chinese Traditional Music) and Mr. James Wong (Popular Cantonese Music). The workshop (i) gathers reference publications and materials relating to Chinese Music, both traditional and contemporary; (ii) receives academic visitors; and (iii) has extended its research activities to include popular Cantonese songs and the popular Cantonese opera.

Publications exchange links with the Central Conservatory of Music Beijing, the Music Department of the Fujian Normal University, the Music Department of the Jilin Academy of Arts and the Research Institute of Music of the Chinese Academy of Arts, Beijing have been established.

Another project of immense importance for Hong Kong, undertaken by the Centre, is the one on Children's Studies. The research done under this study aims to evaluate the current state of health and environment of Hong Kong's children. The production of a bibliography surveying both literature and services relating to Hong Kong children, which will be a guide to scholars and practitioners in the field is awaited. It is hoped that this project will be a pilot to the establishment of a resource centre to further research and act as an informed and responsive voice for the future needs of Hong Kong's children.

In September 1993, Hong Kong Telecom Foundation awarded a research grant of HK$1.2 million for a three-year project on telecommunications research. Under the guidance of the Project Director, Dr. John Ure, also a Research Associate of the Centre of Asian Studies, the Telecommunications Research Project aims to produce independent academic research in the areas of economic and social study of telecommunications and related information technologies as they affect Hong Kong either directly within the territory, or indirectly through Hong Kong's international communications and trade. This is the first centre of social science research in Hong Kong devoted to the study of telecommunications and related information technologies. Dr. John Ure is assisted in his work in the Telecommunications Research Project by Assistant Research Officer, Ms. Chan So-kuen.

The Centre also promotes studies on economic development in Asian countries from both the sociological and economic perspective. A collaborative research project was set up under a general agreement between The University of Hong Kong and the Italian Institute of Foreign Trade (ICE) to study the Greater China-European Community economic relationship and Hong Kong-Italian economic cooperation. Ms. Mely Caballero-Anthony, Centre of Asian Studies Research Officer, spent a month in April-May 1994, based at Ca Foscari University, Venice, working with colleagues there, on this project.

In addition, the Centre receives, each year, a visiting specialist on the Chinese economy from the Institute of Developing Economics in Tokyo. Since April 1993, Mr. T. Harada has been at the Centre of Asian Studies, following the departure of his IDE colleague, Mr. K. Ishihara. Mr. Harada is studying the distribution of goods in China.

The Moral Teaching of Confucius and Socrates

This is a study of two of the greatest thinkers of the world whose moral teaching has left an indelible mark on both their contemporaries and subsequent generations up to today. Confucius aimed at producing a peaceful and prosperous society through benevolent authoritarianism while Socrates taught that the world was a rationally ordered structure in which the function of man was to fit in with the whole structure. While both thinkers try to make man happy through being good, Confucius believes in achieving this through absolute obedience to authority. On the other hand, Socrates believes in doing this by means of teaching the moral norms of behaviour to everybody who will then be good because that is where his happiness lies.

1. The Chinese and Hong Kong Civil Service Systems

The project seeks to produce a monograph on the institutions and processes of civil service management in China and Hong Kong, tentatively entitled China's Civil Service Systems: the Mainland and Hong Kong. The book will examine the changing political and economic environment of China's and Hong Kong's civil service systems, new civil service management policies, and cadre reactions to these policies. These activities are part of a larger project, undertaken with Ian Scott, entitled "Comparative Civil Service Systems: Hong Kong and China". The project is based on archival research and surveys and examines the organization and operations of the Hong Kong and Chinese civil services and their interactions in the transition to 1997. Duration: July 1992-Present.

2. Personnel System Survey in China and Hong Kong

The project seeks to survey civil servants' perceptions of government personnel practices. In addition, it seeks information on their attitudes to economic development. The project is being carried out with scholars of the Institute of Public Administration of China People's University in Beijing. Duration: July 1992-Present.

3. Chinese Senior Leadership Project

Based on Who's Who in China: Current Leaders (Beijing: Foreign Languages Press, 1988), the project seeks to computerize data on party membership, age, sex, place of birth, and career pattern for China's top 2,000 leaders.

4. The Senior Civil Service in Hong Kong

In collaboration with Dr. John Bacon-Shone (Department of Statistics, University of Hong Kong), I am helping to maintain a computerized data bank on the career structures and backgrounds of Hong Kong's top 1,000 civil servants. Duration: 1980-present.

1. Chinese Ideographs and Western Ideas

An analysis of the conceptual and scientific arguments of the principle that the meaning of writing is dependent on the meaning of speech. I criticize the arguments used by linguistics who eschew the word "ideograph" and argue that it does not mean a graph that expresses ideas, but a graph that is tied to reality in the way ideas are tied to reality. This conception, I argue, helps illuminate traditional Chinese theories of language. Appeared in The Journal of Asian Studies, 42, no. 2, May 1993, pp. 373-99.

2. A Feeling about Qing feelings: reality

A theory of the meaning of qing reality in Classical Chinese thought that explains how it came to refer to feelings or passions was written for a collection on comparative studies of emotion, East and West. Forthcoming in Joel Marks and Roger Ames, eds., Emotions in Asian Thought: A Dialogue in Comparative Philosophy (Buffalo, SUNY Press), 1994.

3. Do Human Rights Apply to China? A Normative Analysis in Comparative Ethics

It will appear in J. Kim and E. Sosa, eds., Blackwell Companion to Metaphysics, 1994.

7. Meaning Change and *Fa*standards

An extended argument for the interpretive principle that we should not postulate changes in meaning without meeting a specific kind of burden of proof and then that the interpretive claim that *fa*standards came to mean "laws" for the Fa-jia in Classical China does not meet that burden. I argue that if understood as objective or measurable standards accessible to ordinary people for the application of terms in public guidance in general it makes more sense of the crucial arguments among the named philosophers. Appearing in Philosophy East and West. Vol. 44 No. 3, July 1994, pp. 435-88.

8. The Daode Jing: A Translation and Handbook to Philosophical Interpretation

1. A Study of School Attendance and Non-Attendance in National Minority Border Regions of China

This joint project between the Education Department of the University of Hong Kong and the Central Institute of Educational Research of China employed survey questionnaires and fieldwork to examine patterns of attendance and non-attendance in five national minority autonomous border counties in each of three border provinces of China. The main objective of this study was to identify degrees of association between various regional, school and family related indices and school attendance and non-attendance in selected national minority border counties within three provinces: Inner Mongolia, Yunnan and Guangxi. The research is supported by an Asia Development Bank Grant administered by the International Development Research Center.

2. Economic Reforms and Higher Education in China

The aim of this study is to examine selected implications of the socialist market economy for changes in higher education and the labour market in China. This research is supported by a grant from the University of Hong Kong, Committee on Research and Conference Grants, China's Economic Reforms and Changes in Higher Education, June 1993.

3. A Study of the Academic Profession in Hong Kong Higher Education

This is part of an international study of the academic profession in higher education coordinated by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching. It examines the state of the academic profession in Hong Kong and 14 countries. It received support from the Carnegie Foundation of the Advancement of Teaching, the Hang Seng Bank Fund for Research administered by the Centre of Asian Studies, the University of Hong Kong, and Sik Sik Yuen.

4. Education and Development in South China

This research investigates the manpower system and the relevance of education to the non-state economic sector in a Special Economic Zone, Shenzhen. It is supported by the Research Grants Council.

1. The History of Regional Associations in Hong Kong

This is a UPGC funded project looking into the history of a very important form of Chinese social organization. It explores the role they played in sustaining emigrants' ties with their native place and maintaining a global network of overseas Chinese based on regional ties. They are also studied as an essential aspect of Hong Kong society.

2. Emigration from Hong Kong: Tendencies and Impacts

This is another UPGC funded project of which I am a co-investigator. My part in the project is to look at emigration from Hong Kong 1841-1941, and point out the social and economic importance of immigration to Hong Kong as well as the importance of emigration from Hong Kong to the history of Chinese emigration as a whole.

3. History of the Bank of East Asia

A project funded by the Bank of East Asia, one of the oldest Chinese-owned and Chinese-operated banks in Hong Kong.

4. Chinese Patriarchalism in a British Colony

The project, using mainly materials from the Po Leung Kuk archives, examines how Victorian attitudes toward women and the colonial bureaucracy prevailed over the professed anti-slavery policy of the British government to allow the trade in women to flourish in Hong Kong.

1. Liu Chi-wen (1890-1957): revolutionary and politician

Follower of Sun Yat-sen from Japan to Canton, then quartermaster of the northern expeditionary forces, this colourful figure was the first mayor of Nanking after the establishment of the national government. This study on Liu Chi-wen will use archival sources and family papers.

2. Wei Hsioh-ren (1899-1987): educator and scientist

With a doctorate from the University of Chicago in nuclear physics, Wei turned down offers for research to return to the University of Nanking in 1928 as founding dean of the college of science. Among his achievements was pioneering audio-visual education in China. He personally filmed the total solar eclipse in 1936 at Hokkaido the first time ever on Kodak chrome. This project will use archival sources and family papers, and is undertaken at the request of the University of Sichuan which approached the author to write about her father, Wei Hsioh-ren.

1. China's Reforms as Produced by Local Power Networks

This research is to appear in a book about China's reforms as generated in corporate local power networks that weaken the state. The book is likely to be titled, Unstateley Power: Local Causes of China's Reforms and Reactions after 1970. Reforms on the Shanghai delta in many fields, ranging from rural industry to religion, come as unintended consequences of previous policies and as effects of technological changes. White challenges "civil society" approaches to reforms and questions some, but not all, elements of James C. Scott's emphasis on the "transcripts" (as distinct from the resources) of nonstate leaders. He raises questions about the extent to which articulate expression should be required of politics (a theme stressed in a related paper concerning "Mute Politics," which is currently under review at a journal). "Taking the state back out" of post-revolutionary China has been a very bumpy process, but one in which many have prospered.

2. China Coast Identities

Research on this topic, which uses Hong Kong, Taiwan and Guangdong as its three case studies, was begun at the Centre and is now published in a book, edited by Lowell Dittmer and Samuel Kim. The paper proposes an historical method of defining this slippery, recurring thing called "identity".

3. Pudong as a New Shanghai

This paper was mostly written at the Centre and will be published. Various international, central, provincial and local actors' interests in the Pudong project help explain why some Pudong policies have actually been followed more than others.

1. Economic Synergy: The Two Way Flow of Foreign Direct Investment between Hong Kong and Mainland China

Based on survey results, we investigated some major elements of the two-way investment flow between Hong Kong and China. Our objectives are to find out the general investment climate in the two places, and motivations of investing across the border. The management decision process and the systems of business operation are also being explored in this study.

2. The Effects of Industrial Policy on Industrial and Trade Structures: The Cases of Hong Kong and Singapore

This is a comparative study on the effects of industrial policy of Hong Kong and Singapore on the economic development of the two economies. Four aspects are compared via conducting econometric tests: (i) their industrial concentration, (ii) their rate of industrial restructuring, (iii) their technology performance and (iv) their trade structure.

3. Trade and Foreign Direct Investment Linkages in East Asia

This is a regional study on the trade and foreign direct investment linkages in East Asia. The Centre of Asian Studies is involved in the investigation of the sourcing and sales network of foreign and local firms in Hong Kong. We carried out a field-study by interviewing a selected number of large enterprises in the Hong Kong manufacturing sector.

1. Economic Restructuring in Taiwan: The International and Regional Impacts (1992-)

Economic restructuring in Taiwan is leading to the relocation of industrial firms from Taiwan to other parts of Asia and potentially to Australia. Few studies have examined the regional impact of the restructuring process in Taiwan and the likely impact of the relocation of these industries on the new host countries. By first investigating the pattern of linkages and impacts in Taiwan, this study will be able to make comparisons of the impacts of the same firms in different social, economic and institutional settings.

2. R&D Among Manufacturing Industries in Hong Kong (1992)

A project examining the changes in manufacturing industries in Hong Kong. The study interviewed high-tech firms to examine their R&D activities, the origins of their technology and the resources they apply towards R&D.

1. Foreign Investment and Urban Development in China

The project examines the impact of foreign investment on urban development and planning in China's large cities and the contribution of foreign investment to economic development of large cities and their spatial distribution.

2. Internal Structure of Chinese Cities

The project examines the underlying forces that lead to the rapid changes of the internal urban spatial structure of Chinese cities and their impact on urban planning and development.

3. Land Leasing and Urban Development

The project examines the relationship between land leasing and urban development in Hong Kong. It also examines the conflict between land leasing and urban planning.

4. Sustainable Development Strategy of the Pearl River Delta

The project examines the impact of rapid economic development on the environment of the Pearl River Delta using geographic information systems and remote sensing techniques.

5. Cross Border Development and Planning: Hong Kong and Shenzhen

The project examines the development and planning issues related to the increasing interaction between Hong Kong and Shenzhen, particularly the Pearl River Delta. It will explore the impact of different scenarios on the planning and development of Hong Kong and Shenzhen after 1997 when Hong Kong becomes a Special Administrative Region of China.

6. Integration of Remote Sensing and GIS in Land Use Change Detection

The project will evaluate the effectiveness of different methodologies in land use change detection with the integration of remote sensing and GIS.

7. Urban Development and Planning in Pudong

The project examines the urban development and planning issues of Pudong. It will also examine the interrelated development of the old urban area of Shanghai and Pudong.

8. Economic Restructuring and Intra-Urban Industrial Location

The project examines the impact of economic restructuring and outward processing of industries in the Pearl River Delta on industrial land location and demand in Hong Kong.

2. China's Foreign Policy since the 1989 Tian'anmen Tragedy

This is a book project about China's diplomacy after the Tian'anmen tragedy.

CONFERENCES & SEMINARS

A number of conferences and seminars were held by the Centre of Asian Studies in the two years under review. Listed below are the conferences held in the academic years 1992-93 and 1993-94, followed by a list of seminars and activities in each of the seminar programmes.

I. International Conferences

August 24-26, 1992

Zhejiang Ceramic Symposium

Co-ordinator: Dr. Ho Chuimei

The 20 papers presented at this symposium addressed the issues of production of Yue and Longquan wares; the domestic and overseas distribution of those wares; their impact on the products of other ceramic centres. Participants included archaeologists, museum curators, historians and art historians from China, Japan, Korea, Thailand, Indonesia, Philippines, Sri Lanka and the U.S.

September 5, 1992

Symposium on Women's Studies

Co-ordinator: Dr. Maria Jaschok

(Jointly with the Women's Centre, AWARE and the Guangdong Federation of Women)

Delegates from the Guangdong Federation of Women and members of AWARE exchange views on women's issues in Hong Kong and China. Topics that were covered included: legislation to protect women's rights; women workers in the new economic order; marriage, family and modernization.

November 18-20, 1992

Seminar on Cantonese Opera

Co-ordinator: Dr. C.C. Liu

(Jointly with the Hong Kong Ethnomusicology Society)

This seminar on Cantonese Opera was the first of its kind in Hong Kong. The seminar was attended by more than 30 delegates, including Cantonese Opera scholars, performers, musicians and playwrights. The proceedings of this seminar are to be published by the Centre in 1995.

December 16-19, 1992

25 Years of Social and Economic Development in Hong Kong

Co-ordinators: Dr. Benjamin Leung

Ms. Teresa Wong Kwong

This conference was the flagship event in a series of activities to commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Centre of Asian Studies. The founding of the Centre in 1967 coincided with what is, in retrospect, a watershed in the post-war development of Hong Kong. This timely conference saw a total of 27 papers presented by leading historians, social scientists and economists from Hong Kong and overseas. These scholars critically reviewed the different facets of Hong Kong's social and economic development in the past twenty-five years, such as social inequality, social policies, democratization and party politics, and economic transformation. The proceedings of this conference are to be published shortly.

February 16-19, 1993

Development of Chinese Music in China

Co-ordinators: Mr. Wu Ganbo

Dr. C.C. Liu

The theme of this fifth conference in the series of conferences on the History of New Music in China was twentieth century Chinese instrumental music. Thirty-four papers were presented by musicologists and performers from China, Taiwan, Hong Kong and U.S.A. They provided a critical overview of this area of study, and then specifically examined the studies of Xiao Youmei and Young Yinliu, reviewed the reform and development of Chinese orchestral music and the performance culture of Chinese instrumental music, and looked at the educational aspects of this type of music. The proceedings of this conference are to be published by the Centre of Asian Studies.

February 22, 1993

Inflation in Hong Kong

Co-ordinator: Mr. Leo Goodstadt

(jointly with the Central Policy Unit, Hong Kong Government)

This summer took an indepth view of the socio-economic implications of Hong Kong's persistent high inflation and in turn, its implications for government policy. Participants included scholars from the academic world, as well as professionals from the private sector and government.

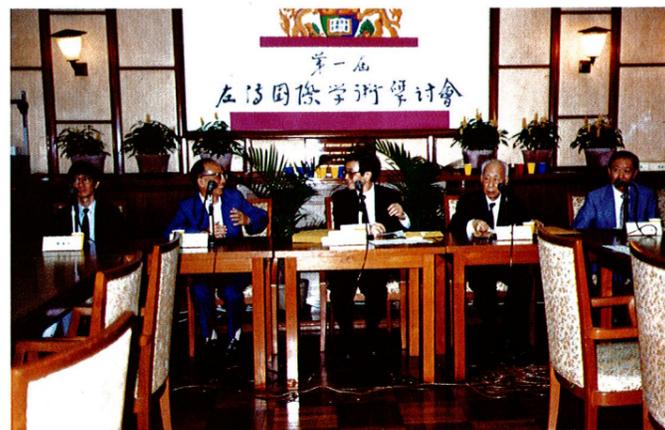

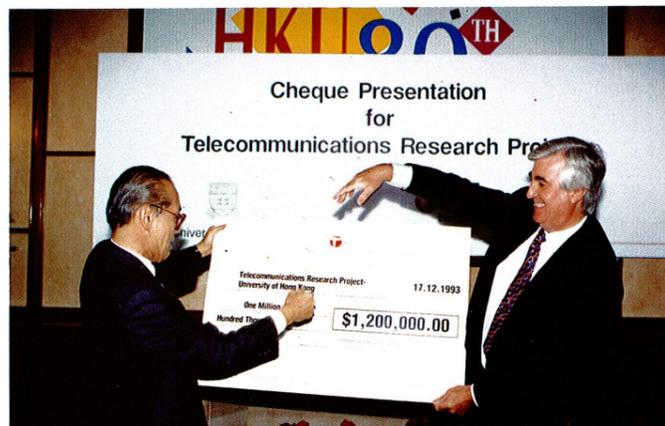

Centre of Asian Studies Distinguished Visitors in 1992-93 presenting Public Lectures, from top: Prof. G. William Skinner of the University of California, Davis; Dr. Walter Eltis, Chief Economic Adviser to the UK President of the Board of Trade; Prof. Gregory Chow of Princeton University.

From top: The Director welcoming guests at the Centre of Asian Studies 25th Anniversary Commemoration Dinner; Members of the Chinese Orchestra playing for the guests; Applause from the audience.

From top: Delegates at the First Seminar on Cantonese Opera, November 1992; Mr. D. Mole, Prof. E.K.Y. Chen and Mr. L. Goodstadt at the opening of the seminar on Inflation in Hong Kong, February 1993; Fr. Louis Ha and Dr. E. Sinn conferring at the Conference on Local Church History, September 1993.

From top: The late Mr. Michael Gale of Hongkong Telecom presenting a cheque to the Vice-Chancellor for the Telecommunications Research Project in the Centre of Asian Studies; The Governor of Hong Kong, the Honorable Mr. Christopher Patten, opening the 21st PAFTAD; Scholars at the opening of the Conference on Zuozyuan Studies, June 1994.

May 23, 1993

Women's Studies and the Curriculum

Co-ordinators: Ms. Maryanne Dever
Ms. Irene Tong
Dr. Rajeshwari Ghose

This seminar addressed the issues of a women's studies programme, feminism and the disciplines and women's studies and the Hong Kong community. Participants included scholars and members of social action groups.

July 27, 1993

Families at Risk

Co-ordinator: Dr. Cecilia Chan

(Jointly with the Central Policy Unit, Hong Kong Government)

This seminar brought together social workers, scholars, medical practitioners and civil servants, to focus and exchange views on subjects such as social and economic threats to families, health and medical risks to families and the level of protection available via public assistance.

September 22-24, 1993

Church History of Hong Kong

Co-ordinators: Dr. E.Y.Y. Sinn
Fr. Louis Ha

Churches of various denominations have played a significant role in the growth and development of Hong Kong, but little has been done so far to document this contribution. This symposium sought to rectify this by bringing together representatives of various churches, to provide information on several historical issues as well as on the historical background of their churches.

September 28-30, 1993

Second Conference on Chinese Vocal Music

Co-ordinator: Ms. Barbara Fei
(Jointly with the Hong Kong Ethnomusicology Society)

The renowned vocalist, Ms. Barbara Fei, organized this second meeting of scholars, musicologists and performers from the PRC, Taiwan and Hong Kong, to discuss the development of Chinese vocal music.

October 11, 1993

Changing Employment Environments and the Development and Management of Human Resources: The U.S. and Hong Kong

Co-ordinator: Mr. David A. Levin
(Jointly with the Institute of Labour & Industrial Relations, University of Illinois)

Recent changes in the labour market and the restructuring of the global economy were the inspiration behind this exchange of views by U.S. and Hong Kong scholars on strategies for development and management of the workforce.

November 19, 1993

Chinese Genealogy Workshop (in Chinese)

Co-ordinator: Mr. Melvin Thatcher

Ten papers were presented at this day-long seminar, focussing primarily on genealogy compilation and various aspects of genealogical study in the Hong Kong and South China region.

January 3-5, 1994

Global History and Migrations (Third International Conference on Global History)

Co-ordinator: Prof. Wang Gungwu

Fourteen internationally renowned scholars considered the way migrations have contributed to the shape of global history, and how this in turn may reshape our perspectives on migrations. The conference focussed on a number of related themes like changing national policies, migrant rights, the consequences of war, questions of culture and identity, and the globalization of markets. The migration experiences of different groups of peoples from the major regions of the world and their role in defining our understanding of global history was also examined. The papers from this conference are due for publication shortly, by Westview Press.

January 26-27, 1994

Economic Regionalization in China Towards the 21st Century

Co-ordinators: Prof. E.K.Y. Chen

Dr. Cheng Chaoze

As a global trend, economic regionalization has been a significant development in recent years. Regional and sub-regional economic zones are well-established; but an interesting phenomenon is the growth of economic regionalization within national boundaries. In China, the concept of forming economic development areas around big cities has drawn serious attention from scholars and policy-makers. A group of prominent scholars from China, Hong Kong, Taiwan and Southeast Asia gathered at this conference to exchange their views on this matter. Resulting from their exchanges, it is planned to publish a book of selected papers.

March 25, 1994

Church Archives in Hong Kong

Co-ordinators: Dr. Elizabeth Sinn

Fr. Louis Ha

Church archives are an important resource for the study of Hong Kong history. However, owing to the relative isolation of various denominations of Christian churches in Hong Kong, scholars and even theologians, have little knowledge of these archival holdings in each other's churches. This meeting sought to provide information on the types of materials available in different churches, and how they ought to be preserved. Eight papers were presented by scholars, church representatives and government archivists.

June 1-3, 1994

PAFTAD 21st Pacific Trade and Development Conference

Co-ordinators: Prof. E.K.Y. Chen

Ms. Mely Caballero-Anthony

(Jointly with PAFTAD International Secretariat)

The PAFTAD series is an important gathering of policy-oriented economists and other scholars who have considerable policy influence throughout the Pacific Basin, for discussion of regional economic issues. The Centre of Asian Studies hosted the 21st PAFTAD, held in Hong Kong. The main theme of PAFTAD-21 was the Pacific experience with foreign investment. The key issues discussed were technology transfer, international co-operation strategies, procurement practices and production networks. PAFTAD-21 brought together 80 leading economists from prestigious academic and research institutes in the Asia-Pacific, North America, Russia and Latin-America. The conference was opened by the Governor of Hong Kong, The Rt. Honourable Christopher Patten.
